AC Speaker Spotlight: Nick Graf, ARM, CISSP, CEH

Breakout Session: Cyber Liability

Businesses increasingly rely on their computer networks to store confidential business and customer information, automate manufacturing and customer interaction and manage supply chain relationships with customers and vendors. The increased dependence on computer networks, along with a growing body of state and federal statutes governing data privacy, has created additional risks that businesses need to manage. This class provides participants with tools and resources to effectively recognize and manage these new risks.

About Nick:

Nick serves as the Assistant Vice President of Information Security for CNA's Risk Control unit. Nick has more than a decade of information security experience and specializes in data leakage prevention, security policies, incident response, data breach and security awareness.
